

August Trip Report

Our trip planners had chosen the Middle St. Vrain and Coney Flats trails which are west of Longmont. We all met along Highway 66 just as you enter Lyons. It sure was a pretty sight to see over 24 four wheelers lined up in a row on the side of the highway. We left promptly at 10:00 and followed our trip leader out of Lyons on Highway 7 and then took a left on Highway 72 to Peaceful Valley. We drove through the Peaceful Valley and Camp Dick campgrounds where we met Coyote John and stopped to lock in and air down. The Coyote and several other club members had camped the night before on up the trail.

Everybody seemed to enjoy bouncing over the rocks, picking their own lines and either trying to go over the bigger rocks for a challenge or around them because of clearance. All was fine until Dan M. Did

The turtle dance on one particularly large boulder and had to be snatched off. We did come to a bog and several had to be snatched at this spot also. It was slow going because of all the fun being had and the front of the line had to wait at the Coney Flats turnoff for the tail end to catch up.

From this intersection the trail gains elevation quickly and there were a couple of rock climbs that played havoc for a few that didn't have lockers, but they learned how to finesse their way through.

Meanwhile, Troy H. was having fuel delivery issues. His Jeep would run for a couple hundred feet and then quit. There was a traffic jam behind him and Troy kept waving people around him. Those that stopped to help were told to go on up the trail and his dad stayed behind to help nurse the sick Jeep along.

At the top we parked by Coney Creek and had a late lunch. Sun of Coyote (Jake), got out his fishing pole and in about five minutes he caught 5 trout. They weren't eatin' size so he had to throw them back. A few took off their shoes and waded around in the cold mountain creek. After lunch we crossed the deep creek and headed down the hill. Coyote John turned around and headed back the way we came so he could break camp. On the way down he came upon Troy who was still having issues. He offered to help him fix the Jeep or at least tow him to the top and flat ground. Troy said he would make it on his own power (what little he had). We talked to him that evening and he said that once he got it pointed down hill, it ran great all the way home.

For most of us, it was a fun day of wheeling with the Mountaineer family.
